We are so proud of our 100 Platinum Stars - the Covid delayed 2020 winners completing their PS100 journey this year.

Well done

*THERE SHE IS!
MS. TRANG BUI*

Hi, everyone. My name is Trang. Although you have not seen me yet in Mitek, I have been an English trainer here for nine months. What is a surprise! And if you wonder why I chose to be a trainer here, let me tell you something: 'I cannot teach anybody anything; I can only make them think.' They are my favourite lines from Socrates.

To me, I always believe that teachers ask questions and help students find answers. Yet learning isn't only about finding the right answer, but also creating the road that leads to the answer. Learning with every step is the true sign of progress. That's why Mitek deeply impressed me because I can not only be an English instructor to guide learners in academics but also be a friend to accompany them in other activities. Besides, I strongly believe that the most important thing in learning English is not to pass a test but to use it as your own language. Therefore, I truly hope that learning English will not be a burden to all of you and you can enjoy every moment in your English classes.

On the June 11th the recruitment team had the opportunity to attend HUTECH Exhibition on Art, Architecture & Construction 2022. This event attracts about 5000 students majoring in Architecture, Arts, Interior Decoration and Construction. MiTek Vietnam is a co-sponsor for the program which enables us to showcase our company and career opportunities to the graduating students. The team includes Thai Vo, Tuan Pham, Vu Bui, Huan Truong, Tram Ngo. As a team we aim to bring the spirit of enthusiasm, and energy to inspire the students, to pursue a career with MiTek. Many students came to check in and learn about MiTek's business through some interesting activities at our booth.

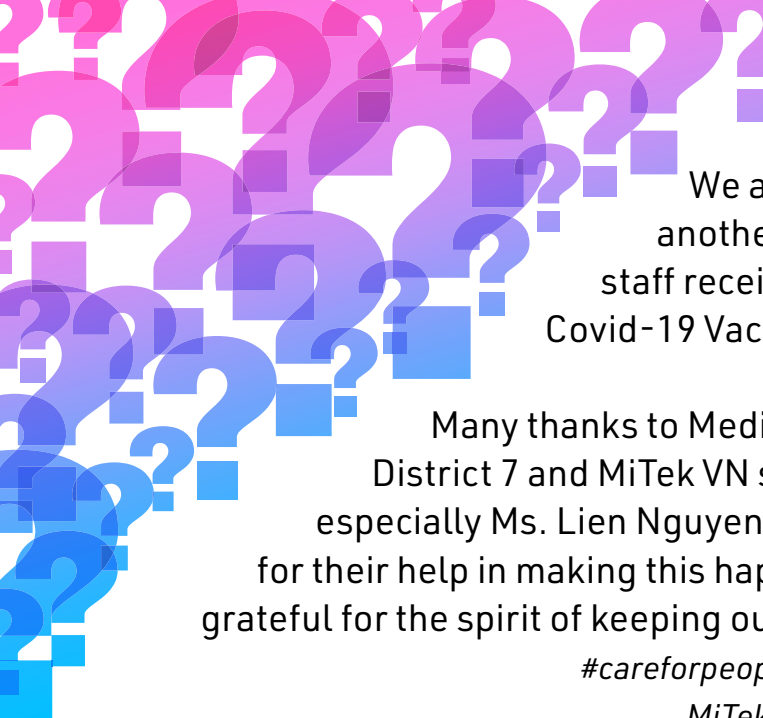

#MITEKVIETNAMEXPERIENCEDAY

Inviting people for a meal at your home is a way to develop friendships or enjoy time with people with whom you already share a close bond. Likewise, inviting students to the MiTek family to learn and experience a working day at MiTek is also a good way to help them understand us better.

Our ambassadors Tam Nguyen; Nhu Le; Thu Nguyen who graduated from Mien Tay Construction University gave the students a realistic experience with live examples not only about their career development but also the family atmosphere at MiTek Vietnam.

The students visited the working floors and office 3 & 4 so if you see students visits the office remember to say "hi" and help them experience the positivity of MiTek.

#Junehabit- Focus on what you have.

Have you heard that (partly thanks to smartphones) humans have a shorter average attention span than goldfish?

Goldfish: nine seconds.

Humans: eight!

For the good of our edification, our future, and our sanity, let's look at some strategies for staying engaged—for longer than eight seconds. Let's show those goldfish what we're capable of.

1. First, get your mind right.

Much of how we perform any task starts with how we set up our mentality. Before your next class, instead of thinking, “I'm tired” or “This class is going to be so boring,” try thinking “How interesting, I get to learn something today that I've never heard of!” or “Today I'm going to stay alert by pretending I'm taking notes for someone who's absent.” Come up with whatever thought helps you establish a mindset that works for you and not against you.

2. Minimize distractions.

Choosing to sit in the front of the class will help in a few ways. First, it will prevent you from looking at all the people and eye-catching things going on between you and the front of the classroom. Second, sitting right in front of the teacher will remind you to keep your phone out of sight. Phones apparently want all the attention; don't give in! Instead, get distracted by everything the teacher is saying. Also, being in front is just more engaging. People pay big money for front row seats at concerts, sporting events, and plays. Front row seats in class are free!

3. Optimize your note-taking skills.

Rather than trying to write everything down, listen as if the teacher is speaking just to you and jot down the key concepts. To make note-taking even more effective, experiment with formats, abbreviations, and pen colors. Mark any parts you don't understand so you can ask questions. Involving yourself in this active note-taking process will keep your brain on task.

4. Be active.

Other than taking notes, find ways to be active. The most beneficial way is probably to use your voice. Asking questions, answering questions, and contributing to class discussions not only helps you better understand the material, but also helps you stay alert and feel part of the class. Even just good posture, making eye contact, and nodding to affirm you're listening can help make class lectures feel less like a monologue and more like a dialogue between you and your teacher.
